Monitoring: Ike presented to AVETS for not eating and for being lethargy for the past few days. Blood work and a urinalysis were performed and were found to be relatively unremarkable. Further diagnostics and hospitalization were discussed and recommended, but you elected to take Ike home for supportive care. While we understand your decision, there is a possibility that Ike could decline or even pass away at home. If he is showing any of the following signs, he should be reevaluated by a veterinarian:

- continued weakness, lethargy, collapse
- Vomiting or diarrhea
- Seizures or if he becomes even less responsive than he is now
- Not eating for more than 1 day
- Abdominal pain
- Any other signs of decline

--Ike received some fluid therapy under the skin on his back. The bubble of fluids will redistribute and absorb over the next day. If the area becomes hot, painful, or red after 24 hours, see a veterinarian immediately.
